REVERSED THE FLAG.

Not until an assered crowd of 500 men and women had gathered about the front of his beautiful home, at 521 west One Hundred and Forty-second street, New York, and hoisted and towled did Gustave Hennig, a wealthy consulting engineer and a subject of Great Britain, consent that the English flag that he had suspended from the roof above the American be lowered.

Hennig, who has always boasted of his love for Great Britain, rose early yesterday and, while the neighborhood was asleep, went to the roof of his two-story home and hung the British naval flag from a pole. From a window beneath he suspended, the Stars and Strips.

Mrs. H. A. Kennedy, who occupies the house directly opposite, peering from her window, saw the flag and, considering it an insult to every American citizen, called upon Mr. Hennig and demanded that he reverse the flag.

"I'll do nothing of the kind. I'm a British citizen, and if I choose, I can hang the flag to suit myself," retorted Hennig, as he slammed the door.

By this time a crowd that was gradually growing into hundreds began to gather about the house and while Hennig stood at an upper window smiling confidently they hoisted and cat-called, demanding that he lower the British flag.

While the crowd cheered and hoisted alternately two policemen appeared, mounted the steps and demanded admittance. Hennig finally opened the door. When he refused to comply with their demands to reverse the flag Policemen Dolan hurried up the stairs to the roof and tore the British flag from its fastenings. Then Hennig, seeing that he had met with defeat, drew down the shades of the windows and disappeared from view.

The police communicated with Gov. error Island and were told that the federal authorities would probably step in and take up the matter. Mrs. Kennedy, triumphantly smiling, returned to her home and announced that she would appear in the Harlem Court today and ask that Hennig be summoned to court to explain the insult.

HUSBAND'S CROSS BILL.

"Sadly lacking in appreciation of the import of those bonds, 'love and obey,' is Charles B. McLaughlin's characterization of his wife who, twenty-six years ago, when she married Mernaugh in St. Louis, framed an iron-clad set of ten rules and forced obedience through the years of their marital existence. The meek and lowly Charles at last has spurred his courage to open revolt. He submitted a cross bill in answer to his wife's suit for divorce filed several days ago. She charges desertion. 'Can you blame me?' he replies and appended these to his allegations:

Bugged a gong as signal for him to retire.

Locked the house at 7 p. m. If he wasn't in he slept in the woods.

Forced to take off his shoes at the door.

Made him pay $10 a week board and the grocer's bill.

Gave her pet poodle Gury bath twice a week; denied him plunged except on Sunday.

Forced him to eat with a fork when he was taught to use a knife.

Wouldn't let him eat at table with unwashed hands.

Barred used to tobacco because it darkened lace curtains.

Forced him to walk ahead of her on the street and sit in front street car seat to prevent his looking at other women.

Once when his wife locked him out he went to a hotel and stayed three weeks and he did as he pleased without any rules to bother him. When he returned his wife had a new rule on her list. It required him to pay the water license. He balked at that, but it didn't do him any good. The city shut off the water and she made him carry the supply from a cistern at the rear of the home.

Menough further says: "In her rules she set a certain time for each meal. I had to be up in time for 7:30 breakfast. If I wasn't I had to go hungry."

CHARMED WITH MURDER.

A dispatch from Santiago de Chile says that Becker, who was until a few days ago chancellor of the German legation at that place, has been arrested at Chillan, on a charge of murder and robbery at the legation. Baron von Bodmar, the German minister, supports Chile's action in causing Becker's arrest. It is understood that the body that was found in the legation, which was that of a porter, and which was buried with Protestant rites, under the supposition that it was that of Becker, will be exhumed, as he was a Catholic.

On February 6th the German legation building at Santiago was destroyed by fire. In the ruins was found a body, which at first was believed to be Becker's. Later it was found to be that of a servant, although it was attired in
